

From: kapilnath
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 11/21/01 12:17am
Subject: comment....

To Whom it may concern,

I think this "solution" is ridiculous. It serves to extend the Microsoft monopoly into areas where hitherto they have had no market at all. I think a better solution would be to have Microsoft spend $1billion towards computer hardware, thus giving computer access to the less privileged. (This is good) The software should be a form of Linux. I believe that Red Hat...a well established software company has extended their software free of charge. Future updates of their operating and system software can be downloaded for free or purchased for a few dollars.

If Microsoft is allowed this solution... in a few years it will be time to update the software. Microsoft just gained a new user base and who is going to pay for it then?

This is no solution for a monopoly.

Kapilnath